

I appreciate how you test the validity of our connection before you begin this task of writing. This is a good habit that you've created. Everyone should learn to test their connection with us every time. Also check that the connected person this side is good and right to speak to you. I know you always commence your sessions with the Lord's Prayer and words to us about your expectations. This is a good practice and one that should ensure the quality of your reporting from this side.

I have been told that you're in quite a warm climate at this time. Make the most of it for I believe your winter will soon be upon you and warm days like this one will be a distant memory.

You have often enquired as to how many guides

you have working with you and what might these names have been:

I believe every medium
asks the same questions at some point -

Sometimes the medium is told a name and a little description to satisfy their inquisitive mind. The name, or the description of the guide might not actually be accurate.
But it serves to unblock
the medium's mind and allow the communication.

Plan to progress unhindered.

I could tell you one or two of your guesses details. But then I've created a quandary for you, haven't I? Would you believe my details, or had I glue them up to satisfy your desire to know? I may be joking with you here, but I do so with the best intent. You see, if you are meant to know your guesses names, you will be told, when it is appropriate.

If you've not been told doesn't mean you're any less of a medium, it just means there is no valid enough ground for you to know at this point of your journey.
I will tell you for sure, however, that contrary to some people's beliefs on earth, none of your main influences
thus far are close
family members.
It takes a great deal of wisdom and know to become a guide. It is a role that the guides earn and enjoy being few relatives or friends of anyone would have the levels of loyalty and dedication.

I believe this working session is the last of this Lanzarote holiday.
I know that those of us that have spoken to you have enjoyed the experience. You have become freer in mind

and the words we speak
seem to be written by you pretty much as we say them to you.

I know also that you had a treat with one of the guests recently.

She is a very happy lady and will try to work with you more
soon.

OK, please enjoy your rest day there. From all of us for you,
Godspeed and good bye.
