

You are very disciplined. Very noticeable. I have a general subject I thought I might share with you this time.

You were talking recently about creation and how everyone is creative to some greater or lesser extent. Well, I want to confirm something else about creativity, and yes, I am aware you read something along these lines in the book you are reading at this time. But let me reiterate a few points please.

which I confess I do not know the answer to. If energy cannot be destroyed, only dissipated into another form, such as that of a thought, does that mean that all your thoughts are from your mind?

