

As you requested, I have given you the sign that I am now with you. Your awareness was excellent and I wondered if the action I took might go unnoticed or assigned to a bodily mechanic. Thank you. That is the topic I'd like to share with you and your readers for this session.

I believe other speakers this side might have talked about it in your past, but please allow me the space to share my words. The topic is about appreciation the subtle signs that we use and share with you all on earth to make our presence known.

Too much of the time people turn too quickly to their known science and known physics to assimilate an answer as to why an event happens.

But you must understand that we are governed to work within your scientific and natural laws ~~to~~ when we create a physical connection with you. It is therefore easy to appreciate that our chosen method to connect with you will often be assignable to an earthly event by its very nature.

But when you open your mind and accept that there can be more than one reason something happens or an event and incident occurs, you open a pathway for our connection to you.

Of course, I appreciate that if we send you a feather to confirm a message, its quite useless if you're sat by a brood awing.

We do have more common sense than you might give us credit for. We see your world largely as an enigma, which we decode, but at times we get it wrong. We always find this rather amusing. I could share with you many examples of when this has happened to me. Here's one such incident that occurred recently in your time. I was attempting to communicate through a medium serving in one of your churches. In his mind he asked me to give him a sign that I was there. I decided to attempt to produce a bible light that was alight and on a table behind the congregation.

As I focused my attention on the light, a member from the church chose to get up and turn it off.

Might when I was about to.
I did manage to switch it back on, ~~to~~ which the person immediately turned it off again. Of course, the medium was too busy in thought to appreciate I'd done that and it had lined up in error with a human interaction.

So my message to you today is simple. When you ask us to give you a sign of our presence, we are usually all too keen to oblige. We do have to work within the framework of your rules though. Open your mind to all possibilities for that subtle sign.

Today, you asked for a sign. I knew where your fingers were and that allowed me to amplify your natural pulse so much that you felt it. Thankfully you were alert and ready to accept it was a result of my actions. The more you heighten all of your senses, including every event that is happening around you when equal our intention, the more likely it is you will accept our initial connection.

Let that be a lesson to all your readers.

I'm enjoying this opportunity to communicate through your pen. I feel the energy created from the words as you transcribe them. It is very exciting. Thank you so much and please do enjoy the rest of your day. I will give you a subtle sign as an example when you're at the eating house you choose for tonight's meal.

Goodbye.
