

I hope you didn't mind me distracting you from your book reading. The book was intended for you to read, but I want to share some words with you first.

Yes, we are aware what you are reading, and what you plan to read. Why? Because these books are placed in your path by the higher powers who know what it is you need.

Here are my words. Have you ever thought about what extra baggage your religions carry that is not required?

Every doctrine, every denomination, every faith has an interpretation of God is one form or another.

But all religions, including yours, places rules, guidelines, restrictions and often contradictions between you and the Divine God.

Can you imagine what would happen if religions took away the baggage, the creed and dogma and left just the ~~essence~~ essence of the Divine?

You might have worked out the answer already. You'd be left with either one religion, or no religions whatsoever.

You may wonder if such a vision is realistic. Yes it is, but don't hold your breath waiting for it to happen on earth any time soon!

One clear window to the Divine powers. Perhaps, some windows smaller than others and some windows coloured or tinted, but all seeing the same view of the Divine.

You see, no religion is correct, and yet, no religion is wrong. It's the baggage created by humans that make it hard to see the views.

The world would be one of peace and lacking so much conflict.

Healing would be normal, in no matter what form it takes. The true meaning of 'Love Thy Neighbour' would be discovered and acted upon by all.

The atheists and the agnostics would be less likely to rebel and life for everyone would be one of peace.

Unfortunately, people seem to have this desire to create segregating groups based on one's personal point of view.

Few people are prepared to accept that one and one is two. Instead they seek to form groups and communities based on alternative answers. One and one is two. But people always believe it's wise to offer an alternative option, such as one and one makes one only!

You have come to learn that through your work, God is not seeking to separate, divide or confuse people. God only wants us to recognise who or what he is and work for his greater good.

That is something that few religions achieve nowadays.

Rules of religion are unnecessary and should be unwelcome.

To love thy neighbour, we must all be the neighbour to love.

I've said all I want to say this time. Something for you to Think about perhaps. Things for you to look out for, and things to avoid. The only religion you require is the religion of your heart and soul.

Thank you.
Goodbye.
