

Hello. There are many forces within what you consider as the universe. But, by the way, the universe is more finite than your science can possibly understand at this time in your history.

Forces of various types are everywhere. They collectively are known as the force of life, though there are many forces within the one.

You would do good as a student to use your own mind and I know he'd like to consider what forces you are aware of. I can hear your imagination screaming gravity at me. Yes that is one such force.

But there are many more such forces existing in your world. Some are combined forces
while others work alone Let me ease your curiosity with an example of a combined force that you will be familiar with. Force one would be that force that works to keep two opposing magnets apart. But that one force is working with the force of gravity. That therefore is a combined force.

Use your own time to see how many forces you can list. I would be impressed if you could name a dozen, even though many more exist.

I show this with you so you can broaden your mind and accept there are many forces that we have this side of the veil, that you don't and won't ever have.

Again, as an example,
the force of gravity does exist here, but we are able to control it. As we don't have a mass and therefore don't weigh anything, the need for the full force of gravity is surplus to our requirements.

This side, we can harness many of our forces to benefit our existence, in the same way you have learnt to harness many of yours.

When we communicate with you and anyone else on earth, we have to negotiate our way through a number of forces, several that conflict with each other.

For the most part, when someone passes across the divide between the two worlds, they aren't be aware of any changes to them in the forces. It is only after a period of time here that they begin to question certain aspects of life here, and then they be accustomed to the different forces that are new to them.

All of the forces I have become aware of from my time on earth and here in my new world are controlled by the great force - You could call this the Divine force.

So you have been correct in that labelling, but have been incorrect in your understanding of what the great force is.
Now you know!

To give you a clue of how many more forces
there are than you
would consider working,
you have to first appreciate the science, as you call it.
Every force is the result of energy at its root.
So energy creates forces.
Every thought, every

spoken word, every vision one all from forms of energy and therefore create their own ~~not~~ unique forces.

Without forces you would have nothing, a state of stagnation. There is no stagnation with an any of the Divine's forces.
But although I'm not in the know on this, there are believed to be forces that are at work outside of the area you know
as the universe.

No you are wrong. Evil is not a force outside of the great force. It is an integral part of it.

My knowledge does not extend beyond what I know of our two worlds.

However, I am studying to understand what we know as alien forces, forces that probably exist outside of our universe. Our current understanding is that these alien forces cannot have any impact on ethics of our worlds. That I find of

Some comfort.

I hope you've enjoyed my talk with you today.

You have transcribed my words perfectly and I thank you.

I am aware that you and some others are interested in this subject and I hope you give thought to how many forces you are aware of.

I will return again soon dear friend.

Goodbye.
