

"Open thine eyes to the heavens that surround you. You are not alone, isolated on a planet. Instead you are part of the whole of everything that was and is and will be."

Everything on earth, even atoms, every molecule were part of the creation you call the big bang. Every tiny part of your body has always been on this place you call earth. You are only unique in your spirit and soul. Your body is made from ingredients that have been used time ~~over~~ time again. You cannot be destroyed.

Your body may be returned to the earth when it has served its purpose, but every particle of it will continue to be present forever.

The opening lines I shared with you refer to the spirit and soul within you, always part of the greater source of all souls. Recognise that your time on earth wearing the body created for your needs is a mere microsecond of your entire existence. You carry the genes, the atoms and particles that come from your parents and their parents for generations back. Parts of your chemistry were once together before this time, and when your spirit returns home, that chemistry will continue and elements of you will remain together is another generation of creation.

Your bible suggests that God's home has open doors and many mansions.

The Divine will indeed await your return. The transition will be as quick as a blink of your eyes. You will return one day. Meanwhile, live a life that satisfies your soul's desires and shines light on the Divine.

Thank you for listening to my philosophy today.

Enjoy every second, for as they pass, the glass of life will empty.

Peace to you and all around you.

Good bye.
