

From time in emporalia) the world I reside in has always existed. But it too has evolved alongside the evolution of the planet.

It is here though that the changes begin and are then passed to the earth.

Evolution has been an important aspect of the growth within our world this side. We have many more scientists, physicians, technicians and researchers than are on earth.

You have learnt about some of our advanced developments with pure energy. Your physical mediums have experience the work of our chemists for example in sciences. Our abilities are far in advance of those on earth. But of course there are some major advancements that your secret scientists have discovered that are being kept secret from you. I feel it not my place to share with you details for that would betray the ethics between our two worlds.

I can, however, share with you some of our recent discoveries.

You call them microwaves. Well, we have learned the process of using them to create powerful motion without mechanics. We cannot of course get them across the net because of the danger to you, but as you know, we create "rods" out of the energy for sitters at a source. These rods are used to manipulate your objects. Our advancements with specific microwaves would mean the rods would not be required. However at this stage, we've not made the process safe

for use on human bodies.

Our scientists have also recently discovered ways to collect the photons that are at the fundamental of light.
We have learnt how that photon can be produced and stored at the point before it is light. Can you imagine the implications of being able to do this on your planet.

Endless energy supplies.

So when your experts suggest that humans on earth came first, followed by the world of spirit, they are completely wrong.

There are so many conferences on earth that suppress much of your advancements. The most obvious hindrance is in how your experts always work as individuals or national groups, instead of collectively across your planet.

The cure for cancers could have been found decades ago if there had been more cohesion between the nations. You have all the individual components for the ultimate cure, but they are all separated by uncooperative groups.

This has slowed down so much of your development as a people. Such problems do not exist in this world.

We work as one for the good of all.

My job this side is as a researcher and I love it. Occasionally I find myself using the books on earth for answers, but more often than not I'm disappointed at how dated the content is. E nee yan latest earth-breaking developments are outdated by our standards.

For those people that think were a backward people in this world, they couldn't be further from the truth.

That's all I wanted to say to you today. My name on your planet was Clim Edwards and I was a research scientist. I suppose that's why I continue with that work here.

Thank you for platforming
my words.
Goodbye.
