

Good evening again. You were drawn to this connection through your own enthusiastic desires this evening. Your mind knew you wanted to connect, and that is wonderful for both of us.

I want to address the issues you've been experiencing again and perhaps some insights to help you through. We refer to some of the negative thoughts as a shade of dark. Dark thoughts you know why? Because they are absent of the light of the Divine essence. You would do well to make sure to remember that, because it contains the solution in the words.

Dark thoughts need the light of the Divine to banish them from the shadows. They cannot exist in the light, in the same way you cannot be depressed and laugh with intent.

Your sensitivity has always made you vulnerable to these changes of thought. We're made of flesh before though how quickly you usually change your emotional state to a positive one.

You've chosen the word as your best for connecting with us. This is wonderful, for it means your writing, after you've listened to us. Few people really use their time to hear the voice of spirit.

Of course, I also know that you share your written works with an audience - for that reason, I don't refer to the subject of your darker thoughts. You know what they are, as do I. Some of those dark thoughts are the result of your expectations from your readers. Their silence often hurts you. But it should not be of concern to you how others reach how they do. The conversations are between us and you have chosen to share them with others. Of course, we approve of you doing so because of the opportunities it offers us as well to share our bigger messages.

Tonight, you received a pleasant surprise when one of your readers sent you a rather large donation for your work. This should show you how your work is being appreciated by this reader. She values your work enough to gift you for it. That, I know, has renewed your faith in what you're doing.

We were blessed by your words you wrote

Regarding how much you have learnt from us since doing this writing. It is so good that you recognise the lessons we've shared.

You must surely appreciate how strong our relationship has grown through this work. You have developed a useful portal for our communication with you through your own spirit.

In those few moments between that previous sentence and this one, you tried so hard to 'visualise me as a person'. I'm sorry I did not help you with that. I believe it would be too much of a distraction for you know. What I look like and who I am would only distract you from the paper of the communication.

I do not blame you for trying though! I probably would if I was where you are. You were reminded of that film with Whoopi Goldberg called Dumping Jack Flash where the two never met until the time was right.
We're the same. When the time is right, you'll get more visitors.

Thank you for giving me on this occasion. I leave you now in peace. Goodbye.