

Thank you for this opportunity to share my words and them be heard in your world.

I want to talk about the natural gift of creativity.

All life on earth has the spark of creativity within it. Think of even those weeds, as you call them that make their home in gutters and cracks in walls and pavements.

The spark of creativity used by the plant. Creativity is evident in many species of animals too.

Humans however choose to believe that some people are more or less creative than they are. This is not entirely true of course. Creativity isn't limited in quantities in accordance to your genes. Creativity is in equal proportions in all.

Limitations are imposed only by the minds of the individuals. If I were to ask you if you could draw, for example, you most likely would declare

no. Yet you can draw, as can every human alive.

The restrictions you impose on yourself are often because your art doesn't reach the standards of someone else. Or the opposite might be the case, where an individual's art is superior to others, thereby elevating their thoughts. It's not just in drawing, or any of the arts that this happens. It's visible in any tasks that humans undertake that require the spark of creativity -

The limitations are imposed by the individual. When people embrace their creativity, great things can happen.

We inspired your own creativity a while back when we embedded a solution to something you were gunning for. You picked up on my medium is quite a creative person and I suspect you know that. But he too often allows his own doubts to block his way.

But what about you? What do we desire have you right now that is something you would like to achieve. Well, do so.
Don't doubt yourself.
Just do it and the only person that will be truly impressed is yourself.
By the way, every
